

NGC Board Director Appointments

The National Geospatial Collaborative (NGC) is pleased to announce its newly appointed Directors.

Bill Johnson, Retired (2-year term, 2024-2025)

Eric Kolb, Google Maps (2-year term, 2024-2025)

Jenna Leveille, AZ (2-year term, 2024-2025)

Frank Winters, Retired (1-year term, 2024)

Beginning their terms on January 1, 2024, these new Directors will join Tim Johnson, NC GIO, Sheila Steffenson, 1Spatial CEO, and NGC President, Jonathan Duran, to complete the full board structure of NGC.

"We are extremely excited about continuing into this next phase of the life cycle of the NGC. We have a lot of work to do over the next year, and we're bringing together a group of capable individuals who I believe will advance the foundational work of the NGC by providing their own diverse perspectives and individual talents to the organization and leave a lasting impact on the geospatial community."

Jonathan Duran, NGC President

As the governing body of the NGC, the Board directors will contribute their professional expertise, diverse perspectives, and valuable connections to local, state, national, and global resources to enhance the strategic direction and governance of the NGC and ensure that it is providing services and collaborative partnership opportunities that effectively address the evolving needs of the geospatial community.

Please join us in welcoming and congratulating our newest NGC Board appointments!
